

A Night at the Opera

Do you love Japanese culture? Or maybe you'd just like to enjoy a night at the opera? Don't miss out on the chance to win tickets for you and a friend to the critically acclaimed "Madame Butterfly", set up by Folkoperan.

Written by Giacomo Puccini, the story takes place in modern day Japan and we get to follow the young Japanese woman Butterfly, who marries the American lieutenant Pinkerton. What follows is a tale of youthful exuberance and the clash between dreams of the future and traditions of the past take center stage.

Exchange Japan is a collaboration between SASSE (The Student Association at SSE), KTH and Hitotsubashi University in Tokyo. The purpose of this project is to strengthen the bond between students and companies in Sweden and Japan, and as a bonus foster a deeper cultural exchange (there is more to Japan than sushi, believe it or not).

We have the privilege to give away 10 tickets to "Madame Butterfly" on November 30th at Folkoperan. To take part in the raffle, all you have to do is to like Exchange Japan's Facebook Page and comment on the lottery announcement post no later than by November 24th. Five lucky winners will then be drawn, who will each receive two tickets. So what are you waiting for? This is one opportunity you do not want to miss!
